

Oct 23, 2008

Letter to Editor Wayne Independent, Honesdale, PA

Which candidate is Really Pro-life?

Recently I attended an election forum in Honesdale's St. John's church.

It was shameful that supporters for obvious 'pro-choice' Obama would publicly voice support for Obama especially since his record is in direct conflict to the Catholic Church teachings on abortion.

Dr. Parente claimed and then rationalized you have to 'vote for the lesser of 2 evils' even after stating McCain supports embryonic stem cell research, while Tom Shepstone reiterated how McCain is pro-life and said "The common ground begins with the respect to the dignity of every life".

From a Christian perspective Dr. Parente's rationalizing is wrong - we are not to choose the lesser of two evils especially when informed of a superior Christian choice. I argued that there is a REAL pro-life third party candidate to vote in over 30 states (over 70% of electoral votes), ALAN KEYES, in PA you can vote for him by WRITE-IN. see www.pa-election.com. I also stated "Christians are to do what is right and leave the rest up to God".

Mr. Shepstone conclusion that John 'Straight Talking' McCain is pro-life is false. [National Right to Life also falsely purports McCain is pro-life]. McCain has supported the use of taxpayer funds to be used for embryonic stem cell research (life-taking experiments on tiny boys and girls) AND for abortion in case of rape and incest (still innocent life) [HR 3010 section 508] AND also see 'John McCain Tragic Pro-Abortion Record' at <http://artlaction.com>.

I laud Bishop Martino who ardently stated that "This is madness" for any Catholic to even consider voting for any pro-choice candidate. Obama and McCain records both say pro-choice!

Vote for the REAL pro-lifer, WRITE-IN ALAN KEYES for President [www.aipNews.com]

paul curtis
paul@pa-election.com