Are you sure you are voting for the unborn?

I agree with Chuck Norris's thought that "presidential nominees can get away with murder, literally" in his piece on worldNetDaily commentary Oct 27, "I'm voting for those not yet born". Chuck also expressed our posterity matters and made references to their "unalienable Rights to Life". He also wrote that "its not about the woman's 'right to choose' ... It is about a more fundamental 'right to life'. Mr. Norris rightfully expressed that Obama has "the most liberal views and voting record on abortion of any president in American history". In summary he emphasized who you cast a ballot for president in this election will likely have a huge impact on those not yet born.

Nearly all of his article was in truth with one big exception, I and others strongly oppose the false claim that John McCain is pro-life. John 'straight talking' McCain is not pro-life, UNLESS you claim killing human embryos (the tiniest of boys and girls) for research is being pro-life. Unless you claim it is fine to invoke a death sentence on innocent babies for the sins of their fathers due to rape or incest. Senator McCain has even supported HR 3010 which allows taxpayer funds to pay for those types of abortions. For much more information on John McCain's Tragic Pro-Abortion Record see artlaction.com.

Does Chuck know that granting the right to 'choose' to legalize abortion to the states is a false 'right' to do wrong? Both McCain and Palin have espoused that each individual state should have the rights to decide the legality of abortion. Chuck was right to refer to the U.S. Constitution and Declaration of Independence in arguing for the protection of the unborn. Does Chuck know before the Supreme Court decision federally legalized murder of the unborn in the Roe vs Wade decision that more than a dozen states had decided that abortion in some form was already legal? Calling anyone [including McCain and Palin] that claim states have the so called 'right' to legalize the taking of innocent life is not pro-life. Obama and McCain vary in amount of blatant evil. Voting for evil [including the lesser of two evils] and then praying or hoping or expecting good is insanity. McCain is not only not pro-life he also has supported bills which infringe on our bill of rights with anti-free speech in McCain-Feingold bill and infringed on our pursuit of happiness [economic, safety, and security] by authoring to reward illegal aliens further with the McCain-Kennedy amnesty bill.

Chuck closed his piece with "We are in dire need of reminding one another and electing a president who will honor the fact that" the unborn are created equal and have an unalienable right to life. I am in total agreement with that. There is such a candidate, a national treasure, his name is Dr. Alan Keyes. Alan believes in a government of, by, and for the people. Alan was nominated by the newly formed America's Independent Party \(AIP\) in August, he can be written in nearly 30 states \(372 electoral votes\) and is directly on the ballot in California, Florida and Colorado. Dr. Keyes worked in the Ronald Reagan Administration as assistant Secretary of State, and ambassador to the U.N. protecting our country interests. He has been an ardent supporter of the rights of the unborn for decades. Even Joe the plumber respected Alan's breadth and depth of knowledge by saying in his own words that Alan Keyes "could probably fix this country in two years ... We need somebody like that" [for president], and that neither Obama nor McCain was a choice [for the people]. See www.americasrevival.com.

Chuck you and others really have a man of integrity, experience, and a genuine defender for 'those not yet born' for President of the U.S. in Alan Keyes. We and the states do NOT have the right to do wrong. Write Alan Keyes in for president, an individual that really believes in a government OF, FOR (including the unborn) and BY the PEOPLE.
